St. Louis County offices are open but with reduced staffing

St. Louis County offices will be open today, Friday, February 21. However, staffing levels will be affected due to current weather conditions. Anyone planning a visit to any county facility is urged to use caution while traveling, and asked to be patient.

An emergency condition has been declared for all county locations, which means non-emergency county employees may choose to use personal time off if road conditions prevent them from making it to work. All employees in emergency positions report as planned.

With snowfall totals ranging from six to 15 inches across the county, and with one to four more inches of snow expected, Public Works crews have been back out since 4 a.m., focusing on major County corridors. Crews will remain at full force throughout the day, and continue into the weekend as high winds are expected to cause drifting.
