Note: Due to stimulus funding, several changes have occurred in federal reimbursement schedules that will positively impact St. Louis County, although they are not grant dollars received and have no direct job creation role. Federal Medical Assistance Program (FMAP) payment share has increased for payments from 2008-2010. This will result in additional reimbursement to St. Louis County for these clients. In addition, the 2009 American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA) restores the federal match for Title IV-D child support.

In addition, there are two ways in which citizens in St. Louis County will benefit from Health Care/Social Services ARRA funding. The first way is through funding that is available to help individuals injured by the economic downturn, for example through extended unemployment benefits available through the state unemployment office and through new COBRA provisions that helps these individuals extend their health care benefits. ARRA funding also has expanded eligibility for the Food Support Program. This includes unemployment insurance changes, COBRA Premium payment changes, food support benefit changes, and crisis funds extended. The second manner in which Health Care/Social Services ARRA funding helps states and/or counties continue to administer and deliver needed services. This includes enhanced federal funding that St. Louis County received for Food Support program administration which will help offset the increased number of applicants for assistance caused by the economic downturn. This was a one-time payment, and no further funds will be awarded. There are some other changes that assist St. Louis County in continuing to operate these programs by providing federal funding that offsets State reductions. These dollars fund and extend funding to programs that are of significant economic benefit to the people of St. Louis County. For example, there is an increase in reimbursement for some Medicaid services from 50% to 61+%.
